Typical strengths for your Listening score

Your scaled score is between 400 and 450. Test takers who score around 400 typically have the following strengths:

- They can infer the central idea, purpose, and basic context of short spoken exchanges across a broad range of vocabulary, even when conversational responses are indirect or not easy to predict.
- They can infer the central idea, purpose, and basic context of extended spoken texts across a broad range of vocabulary. They can do this even when the information is not supported by repetition or paraphrase and when it is necessary to connect information across the text.
- They can understand details in short spoken exchanges, even when negative constructions are present, when the language is syntactically complex, or when difficult vocabulary is used.
- They can understand details in extended spoken texts, even when it is necessary to connect information across the text and when this information is not supported by repetition. They can understand details when the information is paraphrased or when negative constructions are present.

To see weaknesses typical of test takers who score around 400, see the Proficiency Description Table.

Typical strengths for your Reading score

Your scaled score is between 80 and 150. Test takers who score around 150 typically have the following strengths:

- They can locate the correct answer to a factual question when not very much reading is necessary and when the language of the text matches the information that is asked for.
- They can understand easy vocabulary and common phrases.
- They can understand the most-common, rule-based grammatical constructions when not very much reading is necessary.

To see weaknesses typical of test takers who score around 150, see the Proficiency Description Table.

If your performance is closer to 250, you should review the descriptors for test takers who score around 250.
